SCHOOL REPORT.

SCHOOL DISTRICT No. 1 (Blanchard).

Wm. H. Carter, Prudential Committee; Nahum Blanchard, Examining Committee. The Summer and Fall terms were taught by Miss Alla J. Dearborn, a resident of the district. She had very good success, but was slightly deficient in point of order. Both terms, on the whole, were profitable.

The Winter term, taught by Miss Julia A. Doe, of Pembroke, was eminently successful.

DISTRICT No. 2 (Upper West Road).

John F. Lake, Prudential Committee; Matthias M. Moore Examining Committee. The Summer term was taught by Miss Nellie M. Brown, of Fisherville. This was her second term of teaching, and her second in this district. At the commencement of the term, nearly all of the scholars of the district were present, and appeared very well. At the close of the school, there was present a considerable number of visitors. The exercises passed off very pleasantly, and, apparently, all present were satisfied. Rev. Mr. Higgins kindly furnished an organ for the use of the school on examination day. The teacher performed on it during the singing exercises of the scholars. The entertainment was closed by singing the doxology: "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow," &c.

Rev. J. B. Higgins makes the following report of the second term: "I attended the examination and closing exercises of the Fall term of the school in this district, which were very satisfactory. I should think the progress of the scholars during the term quite up to the average. The term was taught by Miss Lizzie Moore, of this district, who worked hard for the scholars, and did all on her part to make the school successful; and if the scholars had tried as hard for themselves, the improvement would have been still more marked.

DISTRICT No. 3 (Borough).

Joseph C. Sanborn, Prudential Committee; Mrs. Joseph G. Morrill, Examining Committee. The Spring term, taught by Miss Mary D. Glines, of Northfield, was not so successful as it would have been had the parents and children co-operated with the teacher. She seemed competent, and willing to do her duty; but there was an apparent lack of interest on the part of the scholars, and, as a result, the term was almost an entire failure, which we are very sorry to have to report.

The Winter term, was taught by Miss Mattie E. Ayres, who is a popular and thorough teacher. She spared no pains in imparting instruction to her pupils, and, as a result, a very great improvement was manifest. The order was excellent, and the exercises were very interesting indeed.

DISTRICT No. 4 (Baptist).

Alonzo B. Lovering, Prudential Committee; Edward Osgood, Examining Committee. The first term, taught by Miss Ella G. Richardson, of Taunton, Mass., was quite successful. The pupils made fair progress, and were tolerably orderly. Not quite energy enough was manifest.

The second term, taught by Miss Nancie M. Foster, was a marked success. There was good order in and about the house; also close attention to business. The house was well cared for, and kept neat. Recitations were prompt, and explanations clear.

The third term, taught by Miss Laura Jackman, of Concord, commenced well, but it was soon manifest that the teacher had not that controlling influence over the school necessary to a complete success. Scholars took the advantage of this, and did not exhibit a commendable deportment. The house was badly cut and marked, by both large and small scholars. The teacher evidently had the wrong school, and the school the wrong teacher. Both were at fault, and parents, too. Neither report was quite complete, nor seasonably sent in. Committees should be more particular in that matter.

DISTRICT No. 5 (Hackleborough).

Lyman B. Foster, Prudential and Examining Committee. Both terms were taught by Miss Nancie M. Foster, a resident of the district. The school, under her instruction, still maintains its reputation of being one of the best in town. The closing examination was highly interesting, and was witnessed by a good number of visitors. This was followed, a week afterward, by an exhibition in the evening, which did additional honor to the school.

DISTRICT No. 6 (Hill's Corner).

Joseph K. Hancock, Prudential Committee; Mrs. Moses C. Lyford, Examining Committee. The summer term was taught by Miss Emma A. Ford, of Concord. Miss Ford had been a successful teacher in other schools, but failed in this. In her register she wrote as follows: "This term of school has not been all I could wish, although I have labored hard for the improvement of the scholars in the various branches of study. The scholarship is very good, for a common district school. Some of the older members might be an honor to the district, if they would attend to their lessons instead of trying to make trouble with the younger ones. At the close of the sixth week, ten of the pupils left school, but I do not know why they did so. Two left the last week, as they were obliged to go away to work. The last two weeks were decidedly the pleasantest part of the term, as all seemed inclined to obey every rule of the teacher."

The Winter term was taught by Miss Louise A. Eaton, a resident of the district. The district was fortunate in securing again the services of so experienced and thorough a teacher. Her exercises were not confined exclusively to the book. Much attention was given to reading and spelling, and the sounds of the letters. The exercises of the younger scholars in mental arithmetic were highly creditable. The map-drawing was praiseworthy, and writing, which is usually much neglected, was made an every-day exercise.

DISTRICT No. 7 (Center).

Eliphalet Gale, Prudential Committee; Sylvanus C. Moore, Examining Committee. The Summer term was taught by Miss Emily J. Jones. Miss Jones is one who gains the love of her pupils; and when a teacher does that, she has no difficulty in governing the school. The scholars made good improvement in all the studies pursued, and the order was excellent. Attention was paid to map-drawing, with good improvement. Good samples were presented on the black-board at the closing examination. Miss Jones may well be called a model teacher.

The Fall term was taught by Miss Clara Peaslee, of Gilman-ton. Good progress was made; but for some reason she did not gain the love of the scholars, and therefore it was hard to govern the school. Some of the parents, too, committed the common fault of condemning the teacher, on account of reports brought by their children. This is enough of itself to make unruly scholars and a poor school. Parents should never allow themselves to speak disrespectfully of the teacher in presence of their children. Miss Peaslee labored hard for the advancement of her pupils, and if she had had the co-operation of the parents, the term might have been a profitable one.

The Winter term was taught by Chas. F. Bradley, of Chicago, Ill., now a student of Dartmouth college. Mr. Bradley possesses great firmness and decision, and he is very energetic; consequently, the result was a good school. He was very thorough in all the branches taught. The order was good, and he gained the love of his pupils. As a proof of this, they presented him with a Bible at the close of the school. Mr. B. has made extended remarks in his register, from which we copy as follows: "The size, shape, and finish of your school-room is all that will be needed for years to come. Single desks and chairs would add greatly to the comfort of scholars and teacher and the advancement of the pupils. The teacher's seat is very inconvenient; a chair would not be costly. There is urgent need of several repairs, and a set of outline maps. The ventilator is said to be insecurely fastened: this should be attended to. In studies, I have endeavored to go over only so much ground as could be thoroughly understood. I have regretted that so much time has necessarily been spent in attention to discipline; but I hope it has not been entirely wasted. I believe that a teacher should be very firm, yet uniformly kind, and, especially in dealing with older scholars, should respect them and appeal to their self-respect. It is my experience that he will not find it wanting. I am grateful for your co-operation and sympathy."

DISTRICT No. 8 (Shaker).

Henry C. Blinn, Prudential and Examining Committee. It is with pleasure that we make record of the interest and faithfulness of our teachers. They have exercised authority in accordance with the principles of Christ's teaching—"Peace and good will." We can bear witness of their untiring efforts to teach correctly and understandingly. The elementary lessons have been carefully reviewed, and we hope, in many cases, permanently impressed on the minds of the pupils. An appreciative interest has been manifested in teaching the writing of letters and notes. In the writing of essays the pupils have shown a corresponding interest. One little girl was so anxious for the day to arrive when she could have her pen and paper, that she was heard to remark: "Well, what shall I do with all the thoughts that I have to-day, if I can't write them now?" The pupils have made good progress in learning to write. The penmanship compares favorably with that of our good editor—Horace Greeley. The cultivation of good manners has received its share of attention. Order has been well maintained. Finally, we thank our devoted teachers and their kind pupils for their individual and united efforts to sustain a good school.

DISTRICT No. 9 (Ingalls).

John Ingalls, Prudential Committee. The death of Mrs. Coffran, Examining Committee for this district, occurred about the first of Jan. last, and the vacancy has not been filled. No regular report of the school has been received. A permanent union has been made with the adjoining district in Loudon, and a new house has been erected at a liberal expense. It was not completed and ready for use until December. There has been, therefore, but one term of school. It was taught by Miss Nellie A. Peverley.

DISTRICT No. 10 (Depot).

Chas. N. Clough, Prudential Committee. D. N. Clough, Examining Committee.

Both terms were taught by Miss Mary A. Carter. The school is small, and the scholars mostly quite young. It could not therefore be made so interesting and useful as it otherwise would have been. The order was good and the improvement quite satisfactory. The parents, children, and all interested are under obligation to Miss Carter for her constant and untiring efforts for the improvement of the school. It is to be regretted that so much of our school money is wasted for want of a better system of appropriation. This school is too small to be interesting and profitable. It is hoped that some system may be adopted whereby our money may be more usefully expended.

DISTRICT No. 11 (Upper Interval).

Joseph Heath, Prudential Committee. James Colby, Examining Committee. Both terms were taught by Miss Anna E. Sanborn. She worked hard for her scholars. Excellent order was maintained, and good improvement was the result. It was Miss Sanborn's first school, and she was very successful.

DISTRICT No. 12 (Carter).

Frank S. Noyes, Prudential Committee. Eben P. Carter, Examining Committee. The Summer term, taught by Miss Ella F. Sargent, of Boscawen, was rather interesting. Pretty good progress was made. The order was not quite up to our wishes, although better than an average.

The Winter term was taught by Miss Jennie S. Adams. Both teacher and pupils appeared to have an interest in their work. Good advancement was made and good order preserved. Miss Adams enjoyed her business, and the pupils very naturally became interested.
